

The Dude.
Who scolds the Avis all out of time?
Who's got a cold, and wouldn't it be good?
And does short coats quite fit now?"
The Dude.

Discover his form. You can't or be
Wear pants as tight as tight can be.
(And pants for nothing.)

The Dude.

Who's stiff as statue out in wood.
Can't bend, and wouldn't it be good?
A sort of nothing. Wear the best and good?

The Dude.

Who wears his hair all nice and bound;
And says "I love, that Mrs. Lang."
It's charming quire, or I'll be hanged!"

The Dude.

Who drives a tandem through the park;
Says "Life's a-w, such a jolly tar."
(Perhaps the Dude's the long sought "Sunt.")

The Dude.

Who puts all to all questions, hea;
Who sniffs a smile at friends he sees.
And, for his health, signs rangers?

The Dude.

Who dresses in the latest style,
Declares "The waistband's thinner w'e."
And have some shiny wear, the while?

The Dude.

Who's neither fool, nor knave, nor sage,
This funny spark on nature's page?

The Dude.

Who then, can't put the puzzle through—
Tell what it is—for what it can do?
Guess what it is? I'll give it you.

The Dude.

Advertising Topics.

The merchants of the country are beginning to appreciate the true value of advertising and its necessity to their business. Advertisements arouse the public curiosity which is only satisfied by personal inspection of the goods advertised. This applies to every branch of trade. People consult the papers to find the proper stores to visit as they do to find the arrival and departure of trains, steamboats or mails. The art of advertising, moreover, is still developing as the years roll by. What its future may be it is almost impossible to predict, but that its future will be identified with business success even more closely than at present there can be no doubt.

The publishers of a German novel recently did a neat thing in the way of advertising. They caused to be inserted in the newspapers a notice to the effect that a certain nobleman of wealth and high position deserves of finding a wife, wanted one who resembled the heroine in the novel named. Whereupon every marriageable woman who saw the notice bought the book in order to see what the heroine was like, and the work had an immense sale.

A Market that Favors the Consumer.

Much business is doing, but profits are very slight. Nearly the whole country seems to have adopted a hand-to-mouth policy. Men pay as they go. Long credits are not in demand, and if asked for would not be granted. This is simply illustrated by the effect of the new tariff act upon recent and prospective imports. It was thought that imports would be light where the new rates are lower than the old, and that imports would be heavy where the future rates are higher than the present. In reality, our imports appear to have been determined primarily by the necessities of the consumer, in a less degree by the urgencies of the foreign producer, while the influence of the tariff has been less marked than was expected. This seems to prove clearly that for the present the American market is in the hands of the consumer, and that this consumer does not deserve his general reputation. He was reputed to be lavish, unmerciful and prodigal; he is found to be economical, saving and very frugal.

John A. Andrew.

Says Adin Thayer of the war government: "He was without his faults; perfection is not given to humanity. He was sometimes restive and impatient, if not positively unreasonable. His course with regard to the murderer Green, and his temporary estrangement from Summer, may be mentioned as instances of this; but these were the mere surface blemishes, which hardly detracted from the character. His personal influence upon all who came in contact with him, from the poor culprit who was liberated from prison by his exertions, and who afterward became his private secretary, up to the most eminent men of the day, was marvellous. They seemed to light their torches at his flame. The inspiration of his brashness was for the time being upon them. I have never seen anything like it in other men, and never again after the lapse of 16 years. I cannot speak or write of him without feeling something of the thrill which his presence always gave.

In this country the Chinese who become American citizens, and who accept the Christian faith as their belief, do not hesitate to cut off their queues and dress their hair in the American fashion. However, those who retain their native religion, and who intend at some future time to return to China, generally retain the queues or "pig tails," as the boys sometimes call them. If a Chinese man were to return to his native land without his queue, he would lose the respect of his countrymen, and be compelled to leave the country.

The Grand Army committee on the war concerts, held recently in Tremont Temple and Mechanics Hall, had their final meeting Friday last. The results of the final concert were $287.81, and the last concert, $69.21, making a total of $357.02. A circlet will soon be sent to all posts announcing the receipts and expenditures.

Gettings from Cooksville, Wisconsin.

Heavy Holdholders.
Years ago a hunter and "prospector" by the name of Cook, came here and "equated" on a "10'10'" and established himself by building a grist mill and opening a post office; hence the name of Cooksville.

It is situated on the Wacoma, a stream about the size and appearance of the Assabet at Maynard) in the town of Porter, named in honor of John Porter of Marshfield, Mass., and his brother Dr. Abraham Porter of Charlton, Mass. They located some 2,000 acres here about 45 years ago.

It is a beautiful and prolific country settled by a native population and all the surroundings seem more like a New England town 10 years ago than the towns of New England of to-day.

She could not stand the years and insults of the court and bar, so just as a reminder, you know, she dashed a glass of water in the face of the judge, who fined her five dollars.

All women are not ladies any more than all men are gentlemen, but she seems to have those qualities in her makeup that don't scare worth a cent. I guess she will succeed.

A paper here has the following suggestive item and although published in the Boston Young Men's Christian Union, gives since its inauguration in 1875, 8,500 of the poor children the world over: The people at this season of the year appear in a most abject and poverty stricken condition of the city pleasure of a ten days' visit in the country in summer, a pleasure which they would not otherwise have enjoyed. Aside from the benefit to health of which there is abundant evidence, the visitors have gained much morally from the change in surroundings and influences; and this is especially true of those children who have been received in families as guests. The influence of home life thus received is the greatest benefit that can be derived from the visit, and often has an effect upon the whole character of the visitor. Work for the present season has already commenced. The children are ready, the homes are wanted. If you are willing to invite one or more children to visit you during the summer, address Miss Ellen H. Bailey, secretary, 18 Boylston street, Boston, who will furnish any further information desired. Fare will be paid by the committee.

The Boy Friend.
Jesse Pomeroy has reached man's status now. Under the conditions of his sentence he is kept in solitary confinement. He has no intercourse whatever with the other prisoners, and the visitor is not permitted to speak to him. Solitary confinement in his case does not mean the utterly cheerless existence that one would imagine. Pomeroy, it is said, has developed into a young man of more than ordinary intellect, thoughtfulness and reasoning powers. He is allowed to have all the books he wants, and with these conceptions of his mental life is not wholly devoid of comfort. Since he has been in prison he has acquired enough knowledge of several languages to read them well. His cell is spacious and well lighted and ventilated. Young Pomeroy remains today what his crimes showed him to be in his boyhood—an abnormal character. While more intelligent and intellectual than the average, he is destitute of a moral nature, and basu't the slightest conception of the enormity of the acts by which he took the lives of several little children.

Tertio-Millenial.
An anniversary of a very novel description will be celebrated at Santa Fe, New Mexico, from the 2d of July to the 3d of August next. This is nothing less than the tertio-millenial, or the expiration of a third part of one thousand years from the first settlement of that historic town. The date given to the founding of the city by the Spaniards is 1540, although Alvar Nunez is said to have reached New Mexico before 1537, and we have reported his observations to the Vicereyn of Mexico. Something more than an ordinary celebration is to be held, and a comprehensive program has been made for a comprehensive and varied industrial exhibition which shall represent the entire Rocky mountain region. The projectors intend, to use their own language, to "present the characteristics of the three civilizations which have occupied New Mexico, as the boys sometimes call them. If a Chilian were to return to his native land without his queue, he would lose the respect of his countrymen, and be compelled to leave the country.

How to Avoid Dry Air.
In the store of a dealer on Devonshire street, close proximity to the Equitable Building, and the largest and most complete collection of getting pure moist air. Placed over the steam radiator is a large jar of porous clay, which is filled with water, and remains there until the water is absorbed. Then the tube takes the air, and by keeping the water constantly heated, creates sufficient moisture to relieve the dryness of the lungs, which are often present, especially when the air passes over the outer door or closed. Mr. Smith, the proprietor, who claims to have originated the idea, says that it need be the best known for glossing the plumage of larks and indispensible to those who want to let birds sing. The Russian sunflower is easily raised, requires very little care, can be grown in large corners or in other places difficult to cultivate. It produces many flowers, yielding when the ratio of 100 heads to each seed that are introduced by breaking the heated air all day, and then going into the breeding air of nut-shells. He has also demonstrated the dryness of air by placing two jars containing designs filled with water within three inches of another radiator, and the evaporation deduces the quantity of water per weight of air. The radiator is a simple invention, as it is but following out the laws of nature, but advocates placing jars or plants near the air to impede the moisture to the air that excessive heat takes from it.

Rose Insects.
Vicks Monthly states that it good for the insects which infest the roses, is to dip both surfaces with a solution of white lead and water, and the sound of the rose gall of gallon of water. Another remedy is kerosene mixed with an equal quantity of milk, a spoonful of the mixture being then placed in a gallbladder under the rose. In a number of cases this application by spraying with clear water. Caution is recommended in the use of kerosene and paint, as it is destructive to plants and trees. It is advised to mix a decoction of soap and water, and apply to the leaves of the rose bush.

The payment of the June interest at the Treasury shows who some of the people are who hold large amounts of our bonds, mainly in 11-2 per cents. W. H. Vanderbilt has $37,000,000. John P. Morgan has $30,000,000, while a year ago he owned just $30,000,000. Mrs. A. T. Stewart has the next largest amount, perhaps $30,000,000, but some of hers are coupon bonds of which no record is kept.

Jay Gould owns $13,000,000 registered bonds, and a large amount in coupons, which he uses for collateral.

Mr. Flood of California has $15,000,000. A Boston estate and three or four New Yorkers hold $10,000,000 each. Mrs. Taylor's estate $8,000,000, and Whitelaw Reid's father-in-law, D. O. Mills, $4,000,000. The Rothschilds in all their banking houses hold $100,000,000, or more than one-fourth of our whole debt. Baron Leo and Sir Nathan have each $30,000,000. The head of the Vienna house, $25,000,000, and Lady Hanover Rothschild brought to the Earl of Rosebery $20,000,000 in American 11-2 when she married him.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts has $20,000,000 of our 11-2s.

MARSHFIELD.

ONE.

BY MARIE OLIVER.

A girl leaned over a pale-ray white,
A long, thin, slender, pale-ray white.
The sun gave forth her silvery light,
The flowers their delicate blossoms and rare.
A lad's foot pressed the grass down,
A hand clasped a slender, sharp and alert,
The voices chirped a measured strain
In answer to the birds' sweet call.
A girl stood by the girl's sweet bough,
And left a pink-blush glory there,
The red and crimson leaves were few,
As though to half cut the air.
What a world, a quick embower!
Am I two hours here in perfect loss?
Is found in life's brief little sum?

A new time table took effect the 18th inst. on the Old Colony R. R. The South Shore people are well accommodated, having six trains each way every day. Call at the station for a new time table.

There is some talk of Marshfield having a brass band. Considerable of the fad is found in this part of the town, and quite a number of players from Duxbury have signified their willingness to help.

A movement is on foot to establish a brick yard in this part of the town. As the clay is the very best and an abundance of wood could be had for little or nothing, whoever undertakes the business will be sure of success, and will make a handsome profit.

The standing grass on the late Albert Turrell place is to be sold at auction next week. If the grass goes as cheap as the farm did, some one will make a good day's work.

The school-house yard in Dis. No. 1 has been recently graded, and the unsightly torn down board fence is being replaced by a handsome picket fence.

A game of base ball was played on the Fair Grounds Monday by the Sea View club and a picked nine of South Marshfield boys. The playing up to the fifth innings was good on both sides, the score standing at that time three to two in favor of the Sea View club; but the last five innings the Sea Views made 17 runs to Marshfield 4, giving the game to the Sea Views 20 to 6. The Marshfield club had never played together and many of the players had not played at all before. The Sea Views scored more on the Marshfields' errors than they did by their good playing. The picked nine signify their willingness to play again with the same club.

About every one entering into the pretty village of East Marshfield exclaims "what a pretty little village!" So it is indeed. It has natural advantages that surpasses any locality along the shore. But what adds mostly to the attractions of the place is the long row of stately trees, whose foliage makes a beautiful arch over the main street. [We should judge the writer never saw any of the East Marshfield young ladies—Ed.] what could be more beautiful in a warm summer day? Now if the County commissioners ever get through straightening the roads in South Marshfield, why not go to work and set out trees? If they do the present generation no good, they will make the place attractive fifty years hence.

EAST MARSHFIELD.

It is well. No sooner had Mr. and Mrs. Powell moved into their new house, than a new, but welcome visitor came to stay, and a long stay we trust. It is a boy.

Elliot Tilden lost a cow last week.

Thos. Holmes' horse gave up the ghost last week, and now lies at rest under the sod; whether he has gone to that "undiscovered country from whose bosom no traveller returns" we cannot make out, yet the reason and intelligence that some horses manifest, suggests the existence of a soul within their noble forms, larger and more enduring than the souls of many who groping upon the earth, the portion of whose lives seem to be to show the contrast between soul and soul as between light and darkness, good and, bad, heaven and hell.

Mrs. Gerahan Sherman of East Boston is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Wales Rogers.

The friends of the East Marshfield Public Library will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival at Rogers Hall, East Marshfield, on Friday evening next, the 22nd inst., at 7 1/2 o'clock. The East Marshfield Glee Club will furnish the audience with some excellent music. The public is invited.

The members of the Orthodox society kindly tender their thanks to the Unitarians for the use of their church for several Sabbaths while theirs was undergoing repairs.

SEA VIEW.

A large party from Boston visited the beach Monday, the 18th inst.

The Sea Views scored another victory last Monday beating the South Marshfield club 20 to 6.

Last Thursday an importation of colored waiters and servants arrived for the new Hotel Humarock.

A concert was given at Hotel Humarock Friday evening consisting of vocal and instrumental music, rendered by the lately arrived colored waiters and some local talent. Several plantation melodies were finely sung. An audience of about fifty persons was present.

Funeral services over the remains of Jessie Carlton Ames took place from her mother's residence, near White's

Ferry, Thursday afternoon of last week, the pastor of the Methodist church officiating. The body was enclosed in a beautiful white casket furnished by Thomas J. Studley, undertaker, Scituate. The floral tribute was fine and included many wreaths, the gift of numerous friends from East Weymouth. Mr. Studley was funeral director. N. H.

Yes sir they do have to pay to P. O. C. when they visit the Harbor, and if all that we hear is true, a young gent had his canoe paddled, but when we were young our mother used a slipper, and what she paddled wasn't called a canoe either.

The little Besse, Mr. E. W. French inventor and owner, is now finished in handsome style. Mr. T. A. Lawrence has lettered and striped the same in his usual workmanlike manner. All persons far and near are cordially invited to call and inspect this novelty for such it certainly is, for as it is entirely original with Mr. French it is only one of its kind ever made and it will pay anyone to come a long distance to see it. It will be on exhibition day and evening free to all until June 20th, when it will be launched in the North river. It has been pronounced by many as a perfect model of a steam-er and will be the handsomest craft ever on the river. Parties interested in boats in Scituate and Cohasset and other sea-port towns are especially invited to call and see it at Mr. French's residence, near J. C. Nash's store and they will see what can be done five miles from the ocean.

The annual convention of the Plymouth and Bay Association of Sunday School teachers was held at the First Park Unitarian Church, June 14th, commencing at ten o'clock a.m. The morning exercises were as follows:

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Burr of Duxbury, reading of report by Secy W. L. Nichols, reading an essay by Rev. Edward H. Hall of Cambridge. A discussion of the essay then took place in which the following gentlemen took part—Rev. Mr. Osgood of Cohasset, Rev. Mr. Collier of Hingham, Rev. Mr. Burr of Duxbury, Rev. Mr. Newell of South Hingham, Rev. N. Seaver of Scituate, Rev. Mr. Hall of Cambridge. After the close of discussion, all were invited to adjourn to the Town Hall, where the committee appointed had prepared a bountiful collation, to which ample justice was done. After dinner, papers were read by Mr. L. N. Nutter of East Bridgewater and Mrs. M. F. Andrews of South Hingham, followed by vote of thanks to the essays and the South Scituate society, after which remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Goodnow of Brockton, Mr. Burr of Duxbury, Dr. Mills of Hingham, Rev. W. H. Lyons of Roxbury then spoke for the Unitarian Sunday School Association followed by Mr. Crosby of the Children's Mission. The exercises were closed by the benediction by Rev. Drs. Mills of Hingham, Mr. F. H. Holmes, president of the association, presided throughout the day. W. L. Nichols' essay, was obliged to be absent part of the day and Mr. Ripley of Hingham was chosen secretary pro tem. Hon. E. T. Fogg was master of ceremonies at the Town Hall and welcomed the guests of the day in a most cordial and appropriate address. Mr. Fogg, who was chairman of the committee of arrangements, was assisted by a large number of willing ones who did all in their power to make visiting friends feel at home. Grand Marshal of Marshfield was employed as caterer and did his part of the work in his usual neat and tasty manner. William Cushing of Marshfield saw that the tables and dishes were transported in good order.

CHURCH HILL.

Rev. David B. Ford and wife have returned after their visit of a week to Saratoga, where they attended a Baptist convention.

On Sunday evening, June 3, a floral service was held in the Second Congregational Church. The floral exhibit was fine, and the exercises arranged under the direction of Mrs. W. Brownlie, the pastor's wife, were very interesting.

Children's Sunday was observed at the M. E. Church June 17. The pastor preached a sermon in the afternoon to the children. The evening was devoted to singing, speaking and reading by the children. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. The church was crowded.

The mass temperance meeting held in the Town Hall, Hanover, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, June 13th, was a grand success. And the temperance societies under whose auspices the affair was arranged are to be warmly congratulated on the result of their efforts. The meeting was called to order at 2:15 p.m., by Mr. J. Dwyer, Rev. Mr. Evans then offered prayer, after which earnest and instructive addresses were delivered by Rev. E. S. Potter of W. Somerville, Mr. B.R. Jewell of Boston, Rev. Mr. Haywood of Plymouth, Hon. John D. Long of Hingham, Rev. W. Nichols of Hingham. Personal responsibility, the importance of the pledge; the benefits of total abstinence; encouragement in the direction of increased efficiency and larger results; the importance of a rigid enforcement of the laws, were most clearly set forth by the different speakers. The meeting was enlivened by stirring and appropriate music by the Temple choir of West Scituate. At 5 o'clock a collation provided by the ladies of Hanover received practical attention in the vestry of the Congregational church. At 6 to 8 o'clock a musical and literary entertainment was given by local talents and was received with marked approval by the large audience. Miss Anna Tolman, Mrs. Evans, Miss Sissie Sylvester, Mrs. Jos. Nash, Master Jennie Turner and Master Evans, Mrs. Hallett of Rockland and the Temple Honor Quartet of W. Scituate, contributed to this very interesting feature of the day's pleasure and profit. At 8 o'clock p.m., Mrs. Emily McLaughlin of Boston delivered the most touching and finished address; it has been our fortune to hear, and it is sufficient to say here, as proof of our interest in this earnest and Christian advocate of temperance, that she can have a large and sympathetic audience in this section whenever she chooses to come to us. Although in the evening a heavy rain was falling at the hour of meeting an audience of about 500 persons came together to listen to Mrs. McLaughlin's address. Rev. Mr. Swett conducted the afternoon and Rev. J. W. Brownlie the evening exercises. It was a remarkable meeting and few more of the same sort would help our good cause on wonderfully.
